Strengthening Families

Domestic and family violence continues to have a serious impact on our families with long lasting consequences. This intentional violent or controlling behavior used by a person against a family member or intimate partner is to gain and maintain power over that person(s) during, and or/ or after the relationship.

The program's purpose is to learn the importance of strengthening family systems by identifying the issues and finding solutions through the effects of healing.

I am of Amah Mutsun Ohlone (California Native) and Aztec heritage and hold an M.A. in Counseling. As a university counselor and Native Studies professor, I devoted my career to advocating for diverse communities and Native American families. I am also an artist, musician, author, and illustrator. It is said that music, art, and other creative expressions come directly through the veil from spirit, and seek form through our individual, unique efforts. I keep these thoughts in mind as I play and teach Native American flute.

Class sizes are limited to 5 participants per class

Youth must attend 2 consecutive age appropriate classes in order to receive flute and lessons.
